

Please be aware that Family Planning NSW is not involved in running this research project.

Female Sexual Dysfunction - Research Project

Our names are Lisa Jones and Katie Giles and we invite you to find explore issues within your sexual relationship. We are conducting a research project through Deakin University in Victoria, examining the differences between women who experience sexual difficulties and those who do not. A free internet-based treatment program will be offered to women experiencing sexual problems.

To participate you must be female, between the age of 18 and 65, currently in a heterosexual relationship and have internet access. The research will involve you completing an anonymous questionnaire about your current sexual and relationship experiences and the option of participating in a free 10 week internet-based treatment program.

If you are interested in participating in this study simply click on the link below to find out more information:

<http://www.deakin.edu.au/psychology/research/sfg/>

You can also email us at kgiles@deakin.edu.au lmna@deakin.edu.au or Professor Marita McCabe marita.mccabe@deakin.edu.au.

The information you provide will be completely confidential and participation in this project is voluntary.

